“Concordia’s nursing program creates a very strong foundation for any specialty of nursing that a graduate may choose to pursue. Unlike many other nursing programs, Concordia students all have the same clinical rotations in more specialized areas of nursing like critical care, the emergency department, the operating room, and pediatrics. By exploring these areas of nursing, Concordia students have a well-rounded understanding of the different specialties they may go into or work with on a regular basis.”

► SPECIAL OPPORTUNITIES

- Participate in global service learning opportunities and work alongside teachers and healthcare providers through semester or monthlong experiences. The nursing program has offered learning opportunities abroad in Europe, the Caribbean, Africa, and Asia.
- Attend a retreat that focuses on vocation, team building, clinical preparation, caring, and professional role development. The retreat provides students and faculty the opportunity to discuss and explore the concept of vocation in the profession of nursing.
- Students who meet the criteria of academic excellence and professionalism are invited to join the professional nurses' honor society, Sigma Theta Tau International, as members of our regional chapter, Xi Kappa Chapter-at-Large. Membership in this organization exposes students to networking opportunities with nurses in all facets of professional nursing practice, resources for continuing education, opportunities for engagement in and dissemination of research, and nurse mentors to assist with discernment of career paths in nursing.
- The Student Nurses Association (SNA) is an active student-run organization open to pre-nursing and nursing students on campus. SNA members are also members of the National Student Nurses' Association.
