

Sanford Heimarck School of Health Professions

Inspired by the college's mission to influence the affairs of the world, the Sanford Heimarck School of Health Professions at Concordia College prepares students to become professionals, practitioners, and leaders in a wide variety of healthcare professions.

We have undergraduate, accelerated, and graduate programs. All are grounded in the liberal arts. Students learn through team-based approaches as they prepare for future careers in the health professions.

We welcome students interested in becoming nurses, dentists, physicians, social workers, healthcare administrators, therapists, veterinarians, registered dietitians, or other health professionals. For those who aren't sure what their future health-related job might be, the Sanford Heimarck School of Health Professions is a place to learn together about health and healthcare and how to work effectively in teams as you prepare for your future.
